

Don't try to create and analyze at the same time. They're different processes.
Be happy whenever you can manage it.
Enjoy yourself. It's lighter than you think.
(Sister Corita Kent)

CREATIVITY

THINKING - a gift and a curse! (E Tolle)

We are born with a wish to see meaning in the world, to make sense of experience. It is this wish that leads us as children to ask so many questions of the adults in our lives: "What is this for?" "What does this mean?" "How does this work?" "Why does this happen?" and so on. The search for meaning is further strengthened by our education. We are taught to look for answers, as if everything can be put into words. (David Fontana)

Just remember that the only stupid question is the one you don't ask

Plagiarize, plagiarize,
Let no man's work evade your eyes,
Remember why the good Lord made your eyes,
Don't shade your eyes,
But plagiarize, plagiarize, plagiarize.
Only be sure to call it research.
(Tom Lehrer)

you snooze!
...you lose!

We're all bombarded
constantly from the day we're born with limiting suggestions

Dr. Georgi Lozanov.

belief in limits creates limited people.

How easy it is for people to become trapped in their conceptual prisons.
(Eckhart Tolle)

Isn't it strange how much we know
if only we ask ourselves
instead of asking someone else.
